Is Now On.

Everyone is delighted with our stock both as regards quality and prices.

I would like to suggest to our many town customers that they shop every day, either before noon or after four o'clock, and if possible any day but Saturday.

Our many rural customers cannot get to town early and they must go home early, so that we try to serve them while they are here. Our town customers will realize that they can be served more satisfactorily when we are not so rushed as during mid-day and Saturdays. If you must come in the noon hours come along. We'll be glad to see you.

We have a splendid stock of PAINTS, MOULDINGS, SHADES, and other housecleaning necessities, and in

ADMINISTRATRIX' NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

In the estate of Cynthia Frink, deceased.

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Chapter 121, of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1914, Section 56, and amending Acts, that all persons having any claims or demands against the estate of Cynthia Frink, late of the Township of Ernestown, in the County of Lennox and Addington, Widow, deceased, who died on or about the 6th day of February, A.D., 1917, are required to deliver or send by post prepaid to John English, Napanee, Ontario, Solicitor for Bertha Snider, Administratrix of the estate of the said Cynthia Frink, deceased, on or before the 1st day of May, A.D., 1917, their christian and surnames, addresses and descriptions, with full particulars of their claims or demands duly verified, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them.

And further take notice that after the said 1st day of May, A.D., 1917, the said Administratrix will proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate amongst the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims or demands of which she shall then have received notice, and will not be responsible for the said assets, or any part thereof so distributed, to any person or persons of whose claims or demands she shall not have received notice at the time of the distribution thereof.

THE BELLVILLE ROAD CROSSING

The following is a copy of the Judgment of Assistant Chief Commissioner Scott, dated the 26th inst., and concurred in by Commissioner S. J. McLean, and an order is being issued in pursuance thereof.

The following report speaks for itself:

THE ASSISTANT CHIEF COMMISSIONER:

The Belleville road which runs through Napanee is part of the old highway between Toronto and Kingston, and is senior to the railway at the point of crossing. The railway where it crosses the highway is on an elevation of about 8 feet over the ground line. There is a one-half of 1 per cent. grade each way towards the road crossing on the railway, causing a sag in the track at that point. If the tracks were raised so that it would be approximately level it would be about 12 feet over the road. As improvements are carried on from time to time on the railway the track will undoubtedly be elevated at the point of crossing so as to eliminate the grades mentioned. There is no obstruction to the view of an approaching train from any point on the highway except the northwest corner where a cutting on the line of railway and some fencing is an obstruction. There is a danger of vehicles going in opposite directions colliding with each other at the point of crossing, because as you approach the track on the highway, either north or south of the railway, you cannot see a conveyance coming in the opposite direction on the other side of the track due to the fact that the railway is on an elevation.

The highway during the summertime is heavily travelled, but chiefly by motor cars touring the country and owned by parties living beyond Napanee. Unless on account of the heavy travel on the road by motoring tourists during the summer months, I do not think that the conditions of the highway crossing would warrant separation of grades at this point. Napanee is not a wealthy municipality and the rate of taxation is high. It has not such an interest in the chief traffic on the highway as to warrant the Board in requiring the municipality, under the circumstances, to pay any substantial portion of the cost of separation.

In the opinion of one of the engineers of the Board a subway would cost at least $25,000. I believe a subway would add materially to the safety of traffic on the highway, particularly motor car traffic which moves at a high rate of speed and the elimination of the hump in the highway

ers of the Board a subway would cost at least $25,000. I believe a subway would add materially to the safety of traffic on the highway, particularly motor car traffic which moves at a high rate of speed and the elimination of the hump in the highway caused by the railway, would make travel on the highway more convenient. A subway at this point is a work towards which the Board could grant $5,000 (an amount not exceeding 20 per cent. of the total cost) out of the Railway Grade Crossing Fund provided by the Dominion Parliament to assist in the protection or elimination of dangerous crossings. We would be justified in assessing a reasonable portion of the cost on the railway company, but we would not be justified under the circumstances in placing any substantial part of the cost on the Town of Napanee. Therefore, as there is no other available source of revenue to defray the cost of this work, I think the Board should decide under existing conditions, that the crossing should be left as it is and the idea of a subway abandoned for the present at least.

Signed,

D'ARCY SCOTT.

NEWS NOTES

At the sessions of the Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario, in Belleville, Rev. R. W. Spencer, Camden East, was elected Grand Chaplain.

Mrs. Ann Loft, and old and respected member of Christ Church, Tyendinaga, after a long and distressing illness has been called to her rest.

D. O. Abrams, Deseronto, ill for the past three weeks with diphtheria, is able to be about again. His daughter Mary had the misfortune to break her arm.

A. A. Richardson, Deseronto, met with a severe shaking up on Saturday when he had a bad fall on the icy sidewalk. Fortunately no bones were broken.

Sarah G. Dodds, Cherry Valley, proposes a chime of bells in Picton as a worthy and lasting memorial to those heroes of Prince Edward county who have fallen.

Mrs. John Shorey, Newburgh, celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday on Friday last. Members of her family within reach spent the day with her very pleasantly.

Wealthy men of Philadelphia are ready to spend $50,000,000 to build submarine chasers for the Government of the United States in the event of hostilities.

A two-year-old daughter of Nelson Patterson, of Belleville, was severely burned about the face, hands and upper portions of the body when a brother, aged five years, set fire to her clothing whilst playing with some matches.

In Britain the police will be empowered to search private houses, and if more than a fortnight's supply of sugar, on a basis of a weekly allowance of three-quarters of a pound per capita is found, the persons so hoarding will be severely punished.

Financial men and other employers in Toronto are willing to let their clerks go on a month's vacation this year in place of ten days, with pay, on condition that they work out on the farm at soldiers' pay at $1.10 a day and keep.

Word has been received about a slick cheque artist, who has been operating in several cities in Ontario and the local merchants would do well to take a tip. In one city, the report says that the man swindled two jewellers, one for $90, and another for $150 before he made his departure.

Germany wants peace on its own terms. She wants an indemnity of 15,000,000,000 francs from France and a channel port. She will give Belgium her freedom on condition that Germany maintain an army in Namur, Leige, and Antwerp, and have control of the Belgian railways and ports.

MOTOR CARS

True Economy

Choose that car which will best serve your needs within your means.

This constitutes true economy in the purchase of an automobile.

There is integrity of value in every one of the cars in the Willys-Overland line,—the most comprehensive line of cars ever built by any one producer.

For most families we think the Light Four represents just the right combination of the practical with the luxurious, to result in lasting satisfaction.

Light Four $930.

Light Six $1380.

But the car in the Willys-Overland line best suited to your needs and your means is the car for you to buy with an eye to true economy.

Each has shared in the economies of our greater production—each is, we believe, the dominant value among cars of its kind.

Let us help you choose the car that for you individually will best exemplify true economy.

Come in and see how much car $1100 will buy in the Overland Big Four or $1380 in the Overland Light Six.

Germany has lost many things during the war, but has not yet lost
her nerve.

A Daily News despatch from Rotterdam says that persistent reports are being received from Switzerland that the Germans are evacuating Muelhausen and other places in Alsace. The whole of the Baden bank of the Rhine
as well as the district of Laufenburg, has been declared a war zone. It is generally believed that here, as on the Somme, the German front will be withdrawn.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says: "According to a Berlin telegram received by the Amsterdam Bourse, Berlin is filled with rumors that Germany has offered a separate peace to Russia.
The terms offered are said to be complete autonomy to Poland, the internationalization of Constantinople, the evacuation by Russia of Austrian territory and a Russian protectorate
over Armenia.

Three old ladies who lived in Newburgh or vicinity, died during the last week, whose combined ages
reached 254 years. One of them,
Mrs. Brisco, who was in her ninetieth
year, lived in Newburgh for the past sixty years. Mrs. Brisco retained all her faculties to the last, and took a lively interest in passing events as well as to entertain her visitors with many interesting happenings of the past.

Persistent rumors are in circulation
at Ottawa to the effect that Premier Hearst contemplates a dissolution of the Ontario Legislature and a general election at an early date. It is stated that the Ontario Premier desires to make his appeal to the electors before a Federal election is held, believing that should he delay until afterwards, and the Government here is defeated, the chances of his own Administration at the polls would be seriously impaired. On the other hand, the Federal Government would welcome the moral effect of a Provincial Government victory in Ontario.
It before it itself goes to the polls. It believes that the popular legislation
enacted by the Hearst Government
will carry it to victory.

At the Belleville Hospital a unique event took place, namely, the presentation of a Humane Society Medal to a young man named D. H. Bulbit, at present confined to the hospital
through illness. It appears that the recipient of the medal is a C. P. R.
trainman and was aboard a freight train going west last June, when a little child was noticed playing on the track near Lonsdale, Bulbit saw
the predicament the child was in, and he knew that the train could not be stopped before it reached the little
one. As quickly as possible he reached the engine and climbed from the tender to the running board and thence to the cow catcher. In this manner he was able to grasp the child which he did, thus saving its life.

TWO TOWNS CAPTURED.

French Make Progress Against Strong Resistance.

PARIS, March 27.—Though
strongly opposed by the Germans,
the French troops Monday occupied
the towns of Folembray and La Feuillee, south of the Coucy forest,
says the official statement issued by the War Office Monday night.

Progress has also been made by the French north of Soissons, in the neighborhood of Vregny. The text reads:

North of the Somme there have been no essential changes. Between the Somme and the Oise our artillery
dispersed enemy assemblies between Benay and Urvillers (St. Quentin sector).

South of the Oise we made important progress in the Bassee Foret
de Coucy. Notwithstanding the difficulties in terrain and the spirited resistance of the enemy our troops
occupied Folembray and La Feuillee.

North of Soissons we made progress in the region of Vregny.

Writing from the French front on Sunday a correspondent for the Associated Press says:

French troops had a chance to-day
to show their dash and skill in semi-
open fighting and took ample advantage of it. At the southern pivot of the so-called Hindenburg line, which is supposed to be about at Nally, they came to grips on several occasions
with the Germans, who attempted to make a stand on the edge of the Crouy Plateau, which is a strong offshoot of the still larger Laon Plateau. The Associated Press correspondent watched to-day's engagement from a nearby height and saw the French soldiers gradually push away the German opposition and attain the points they were seeking to occupy with a precision little short of marvelous. The French had kept close on the heels of the retiring Germans since they quit Soissons, never giving them a moment's respite until the pursuers occupied
the sort of triangle formed by the three points of Crouy, Missy-Sur-Aisne, and Pont Rouge, on the Mau-beuge road. At the last named the Germans evidently expected to cease their retirement, as was shown by their abandoning the useless work of sawing down fruit trees.

It was this wanton devastation by the Germans in the country around Soissons and other places which so incensed the French infantry, composed mostly of peasants and farmers, that they could scarcely be restrained from a desperate rush forward after the retreating foe. But prudence prevailed and careful handling enabled them eventually to capture from the Germans many positions which had been prepared for stern defence, such as Vuillery and Pont Rouge.

OTTAWA, March 27.—That, in alternatives: either to continue for several years more the system of subsidies and loans in vogue for the past few years, or to nationalize the roads—is said to be the outstanding conclusion to be drawn from a ma-

Towns Seven Miles East of Pe-
ronne—Experts Look for General Retirement From France and Belgium, the Armies Passing Through Luxembourg.

LONDON, March 27. — Roisel,
seven miles east of Peronne and a railway junction point on the line between Marcoing and St. Quentin, was captured by the British on Saturday. At Beaumetzles-Cambrai, near the centre of the British line on the Somme front, the Germans attacked and obtained a temporary footing in the village, but later were ejected. A British advance southwest and west of Ecourt-St. Mien, south-west of Arras, on a front of one and a half miles, also is reported.

On Sunday an enemy bombing attack on one of the British posts in the neighborhood of Beaumetzles-Cambrai was successfully driven off,
and Sir Douglas Haig's troops improved their position west of Crois-illes. The British forces are still some ten or eleven miles from Cambrai, though they have made progress where they are nearest to that city. The Germans are giving ground only foot by foot, and defending themselves tenaciously.

There is still some difference of opinion in military circles here on the question whether the Prussians intend to make a definite stand on the Hindenburg line. General Maurice declares it is by no means certain that they will attempt to do so.
Other experts say they will halt on that front and endeavor to delay the advance of the Allies through another period of trench warfare.

But whatever the difference of opinion regarding the intentions of the Prussian field marshal, all experts agree that there will be no repetition of the long months of inactivity that followed soon after the Battle of the Marne, when the Prussians settled down into the positions
from which they have just been ejected.

Topographically speaking, the Hindenburg line is not as strong as
that from Arras to Soissons which the Prussians have left. It runs through comparatively level ground

took wheat down under the previous levels of realizing sales. May wheat closed
1 1/2c lower, July 7/8c down, and October
3/4c down. The local May met many selling orders at $1.90, and acted stubbornly
during the day. Oats closed 3/4c down in May, 7/8c in July, and 1/2c lower in October. Barley was unchanged. Flax was 3/4c down for May and 1/2c down for July.

Moderate buying by the floor crowd is sympathy with Chicago strength took wheat up in the morning, but at the top
realizing sales were moderately heavy.
Prices declined in the last hour thru profit-taking and short covering. Croy
news provided the sensation of the day,
but some of the big firms were turned
to the bear side.

plans for the army far reaching and elaborately realized, according to officers who are in a position to predict with some degree of accuracy. It can be stated that the programme which the army is now considering in following salient features: immediate raising of a volunteer of 500,000 men, bringing the National Guard up to its strength, taking into the army without delay the segment of army reserve, increasing the military strength to 10. Recruiting of navy to increase war strength of 87,000.

ment of the regulars and the National Guard to take care of them at home. An early despatch of a telegram to France in order that the government may, for sentimental reasons, be represented "on the spot."

Arrested in Windsor.

On March 27.—Word was given by the police Saturday that Miss Frances L. Sawyer, who had been arrested in a charge of fraud previous to the Toronto police. It is stated she passed a worthless check on the Robert Simpson Company, half of which she resheathed. A letter from Windsor stated Sawyer had been a guest of the Ponchartraine family, having registered as a hotel bill, she had a letter to Windsor to obtain necessary money from the family.

Prohibition in England.

On March 27.—Although the proposals made in the English press seems to be of importance to the movement was considered the demonstration yet held in the place Saturday, when it was crowded, but the tea only fifty lines to the same space to Canadian boxing. Sir James, billed as a speaker, to be present, but Archibald represented Canada.

Prisoners of War.

March 27.—Having the French language the 60,000 French prisoners the places at which they held, the German Government the publication of of French soldiers buried German lines and the local graves.

The Clocks Forward.

March 27.—All clocks in the Kingdom, it is anticipated, will be moved forward at 2 o'clock in the April 8. The clocks will go back again on September 1.

The Government has issued that all clocks shall be moved one hour for the year April 1 and September 1 and one hour, beginning

troops were active against the roads—It is said to be the outstanding conclusion to be drawn from a majority report of the Commission recently appointed to make a survey of the whole railway situation of the Dominion. The report, it is understood, favors nationalization. A minority report, on the other hand, favors the retention of the roads under corporation control.

In connection with the Grand Trunk, the majority report finds that while more than $36,000,000 has been declared in dividends to the shareholders little provision has been made for depreciation and sinking fund. The members of the Commission venture the opinion that a Board of Directors 3,000 miles away cannot be expected to effectively manage a Canadian railway.

It is stated that the life of a car is only twenty years, and that as a result of the lack of provision for depreciation the Grand Trunk is running only one car for every seven run by the Canadian Pacific.

The majority report is of the opinion that an expenditure of $51,000,000 would be required to put the road on an economic earning basis. This would include the Grand Trunk Pacific. The amount estimated as necessary to put the Canadian Northern on a running basis is $50,000,000.

Cost of British Army.

LONDON, March 27 (Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—The immense military effort which Great Britain is putting forth is strikingly illustrated by the army appropriation account for 1916, which shows that the net expenditure for the army was £543,187,548. This amount includes: Pay, £98,157,156; supplies and clothing, £212,960,815; quartering, transport, and remounts, £96,373,107, of which the sea transport of troops cost £30,687,382.

The sum of £5,570,320 was credited to the Indian Government for ordinary expenses of the Indian Expeditionary forces.

Jews Get Rights.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Absolute equality of Jews in Russia with all others to own property, to reside in any place, to serve in the army and navy, to participate in educational advantages and at the polls, has been proclaimed officially, say advices received at the Russian Embassy.

Therefore, it is understood there will be no further restrictions upon the issue of passports to Russian or American Jews who desire to visit Russia than those common to other persons.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions, and in order to cure it, you must take an internal remedy. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Hall's Catarrh Cure was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years. It is composed of some of the best tonics known combined with some of the best blood purifiers. The perfect combination of the ingredients in Hall's Catarrh Cure is what produces such wonderful results in catarrhal conditions. Send for testimonials, free.

that from Arras to Soissons which the Prussians have left. It runs through comparatively level ground and has few heights like those further west, where numerous hills offered vantage points for artillery.

It crosses the plain of Cambrai between the head waters of the Ancre and the Scheldt, which extends above the Scarpe almost to Lille. Next comes the plain of the Somme between the bend of that river east of Peronne and the head waters of the Sambre, which runs north-east and empties into the Meuse at Namur. Then follow the valleys of the Oise, the Serre, and the Aisne, all rather small rivers flowing through a fertile country and frequently inundating the lowlands on each side.

The strength of the line lies in its points of support—the cities of Cambrai, St. Quentin, La Fere, and Laon, the latter two having been formidable fortresses even before the war. All have doubtless been fortified to the utmost extent of Prussian energy and foresight, and will certainly offer a tremendous obstacle to the Allies' advance unless, indeed, Field Marshal von Hindenburg contemplates were a halt here and intends a further retirement to the Belgian frontier, which follows a range of high hills and mountains of gradually increasing elevation until the Luxembourg border is reached, beyond Sedan.

It is likely that eventually there will be a general retirement from both France and Belgium through Luxembourg, but the line from Lens to the North Sea has not yet begun to break and all indications indicate a violent struggle on the Cambrai-Laon front before the Prussians get out.

German Food Conditions.

AMSTERDAM, March 26.—Adolf von Batocki, president of the Food Regulation Board, addressing a deputation on the food question, expressed confidence that the supply was sufficient until the next harvest, according to a Berlin despatch to Reuter's. Von Batocki attributes the present scarcity to the long period of frost, the end of which, he said, would bring greater supplies from the rural districts.

"Production, of course," he continued, "is not as great as in peace time, but the stocks are sufficient to last until the new harvest. The coming agricultural production is assured by the increase in prices, and the yield will be as high as war conditions permit."

Necessary Things.

One of our rear admirals is quoted as saying, "The battleship can go to any part of the world if coal is provided."

"This does away with the old supposition that water was also necessary," interposed a bystander.

Russians Capture Kerind.

LONDON, March 27.—The advance of Russian troops toward the Mesopotamian border continues and the capture of the Persian town of Kerind, forty miles from the border, was announced Saturday. The announcement follows:

"In the direction of Hamadan our troops on March 17 occupied the town of Kerind, which had been set on fire and destroyed by the Turks. The enemy withdrew to positions in the vicinity of the village of Khair. The pursuit continues."

"On the remainder of the front exchanges of fire are under way."

A hundred pounds of silver ore, worth $800, was found in various pockets of a vest discovered stowed away with other clothing in a hotel room at Niagara Falls, Ont.

The Cabinet has passed an order in Council to expropriate the Ross rifle factory. No more Ross rifles are to be manufactured, but the Government will arrange to make the new Lee-Enfield as soon as possible.

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it." —Mrs. E. H. BEAN, 525 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

HE LET THE BULLET STAY.

How Garibaldi's Leg Was Saved and His Health Restored.

Half a century ago it was the belief of most surgeons that bullets lodged in any part of the body should be probed for and "extracted at all hazards." The modern surgeon, who is able to locate bullets with mathematical accuracy with the X-ray, often allows the bullet to remain where it has lodged unless there is some very special reason for digging it out. And results prove the wisdom of the modern surgeon's attitude.

It is an interesting bit of history that a famous Russian surgeon advocated and practiced the conservative method of letting impacted bullets alone more than fifty years ago and by this method undoubtedly saved the life of the Italian patriot Garibaldi. The great soldier, wounded in the right leg and captured at the battle of Aspromonte, was placed under the care of several European surgeons, who tried unsuccessfully to remove the bullet.

At that time the Russian surgeon Pirogoff was stopping in Heidelberg, and the Russian students at that university raised the sum of 1,000 francs to induce the surgeon to examine Garibaldi. Pirogoff refused the fee, but he visited the patriot, examined his wound and, contrary to the opinions of all the other

Miners Buried in Slide.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 27.—NINE men were buried in the slide at the Pueblo Copper Mine, five miles west of White Horse, on a spur of the White Pass and Yukon route, according to telegrams reaching Vancouver. The slide took place Wednesday. Mining crews are driving through 75 feet of hard rock in an effort to rescue the men. Telegrams from White Horse say there is little hope of the men being found alive. The Pueblo mine is owned by the Yukon Copper Company, of which Dr. Alfred Thompson is president.

NAMES IN JAPAN.

The Only Lasting Title a Man Gets Comes When He Dies.

The Japanese have many quaint customs handed down from generation to generation. One of the strangest is that of their naming ceremony. When one month old a Japanese child gets its first name with ceremonial. Trumpets are blown, and the child is borne in great state to the family temple, and behind the procession march the household servants carrying the infant's wardrobe. The servant in the rear of the procession bears a huge box, in which is the priest's fee, together with three slips of paper, on which three names are written. On reaching the temple the names are thrown into the air, and the first that touches the ground is the one which the child receives.

When three years old the child is again named, accompanied by elaborate religious rites. At the age of fifteen his education is supposed to be finished, and as he then enters manhood (according to Japanese law) he is again named.

When he takes to business he receives his "business" name, by which he is known in the commercial world, and upon every upward step in life he receives a new name. If his master happens to have the same name he must at once change it, as it detracts from his superior's dignity. At his marriage his name is altered again, and his last and only permanent one is that given him after death, which is written on his tomb.—London Answers.

The Furtive Look.

Here is something worth while for bachelors to consider.

A Boston woman says she can detect a bachelor as far as she can see him. She always knows a bachelor by his furtive look. The furtive look, she explains, is something akin to that of a hunted animal, always on the watch for snares and pitfalls. Of course this may apply only to Boston bachelors, but it would be well for all other single unfortunates to take a good look at themselves in the mirror and find that telltale look. If they do there is an easy way to efface it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why a Horse Rolls.

Horses are fond of rolling on the ground, and no animal more thoroughly shakes itself than they do. After a roll they give themselves a shake or two to remove anything adhering to the coat. The habit is of much service to horses living in open plains. On being turned loose at the end of a journey an Arab horse rolls in the sand, which acts as blotting paper, absorbing exudations from the body. A shake removes the sand, and the coat soon dries. Cavalrymen in hot climates sometimes put sand on their horses as the simplest and quickest way of drying them.

The Provincial Government and Our Electrical Service

To the Editor of the Express.

Sir,—It is now in order to consider the position of the Provincial Government in regard to our electrical service.

At the 1916 session of the Ontario Legislature, an Act was passed confirming the terms of purchase by the government of the properties, assets, rights, contracts, licenses, privileges and franchises of the Electric Power Company, and the twenty-two companies controlled by them, including the Seymour Power and Electric Co., with whom the Town of Napanee had a contract for electric service.

The Act passed by the Legislature confirmed the agreement between the Government and the Electric Company, and declared it to be legal, valid and binding on both parties.

The Act further declares that every part of the property, assets, rights, contracts, privileges, licenses, franchises, undertakings and businesses, are vested in His Majesty the King, or in other words, the ownership is the Provincial Government.

The Act empowers the Government by Order-in-Council, to vest in any commission, municipal corporation, municipal commission, company, corporation, firm or individual the ownership or control or management, of any or all of the companies acquired from the Electric Company on such terms and conditions as the Order-in-Council may direct.

The agreement between the government and the Electric Company, which the Act confirms and makes binding on both parties, declares—"The purchaser (that is the government), agrees to assume all contracts and engagements of the Vendor or any of the said Companies, and to indemnify them against any claims in respect thereof which arise hereafter."

The agreement further provides that taxes shall be adjusted from the first day of March, 1916—that is between the Government and the Company. More later.

The above outlines sufficiently for my purpose, and for the information of the ratepayers, the relations of the municipality and the Government in this matter.

Now let us see by what authority and to what extent we are subject to the Hydro Electric Power Company of Ontario. I have shown above that the Government is authorized by the Act to transfer the management of any of the plants to any person on such terms as may be set forth by their Order-in-Council.

On the 16th day of May, 1916, an Order-in-Council was passed, providing that the control, administration and management of all these properties shall be granted to and vested in the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and that for the purpose of management, control and administration, the Commission shall have all the rights powers and privileges of control, administration and management which the Company had at the time of the sale.

It seems to me clear and indisputable that the Government owns the property, franchises and contracts in Napanee; that by Act of the Legislature the Government assumed and guaranteed the carrying out of the contract the town had with the Seymour Power Company. That the Government has by Order-in-Council vested in the Hydro Commission the management, control and administration of the property in Napanee, but absolutely nothing beyond that.

It seems to me equally clear and conclusive that management, control and administration does not confer upon the Commission the power or authority to change in any way the terms of the contract; indeed it is specifically declared in the terms of the order that the Commission shall have only the same rights of management and control that the Seymour Power Company had at the time of sale. The Commission has the power to manage and administer, but no more.

It will be observed that while the Hydro Commission is charged with the responsibility of operating the plant, with the same rights and powers as was possessed by the contracting company, the responsibility assumed in taking over the contracts, that is maintaining and carrying them out, still rests with the Government. It is therefore to the Government we as consumers look for the protection of our rights under the Seymour Power Company agreement.

This agreement is a by-law which under the Public Utilities Act and the Municipal Act was approved by vote of the ratepayers. The Government itself has not the right to amend, repeal or ignore that by-law and agreement. The Hydro Commission could not by Order-in-Council, be vested with powers which the Further, this agreement between the municipal council and the Hydro Commission, but the by-law enacted in with the Municipal Act, be altered or revoked ex same authority.

The Hydro Commission administration of the public utility, ignored many the Seymour Power Co. has adopted new provisions which their employees to enforce by indefensible and I have it on the a their staff that new app been coerced into signing sent to unauthorized refusals to give them they complied.

What does the Government pose to do about the stand-and-deliver administration the Commission they or Government assumed a guarantor of this contract ratepayers look to the to see that it is faithful

The Ford is Economical

THE average man can easily afford a Ford car. It is the most inexpensive car to drive.

20 to 25 miles on a gallon of gasoline is an every-day occurrence. 33 miles is frequently reported by Ford owners. Yearly repair expenses of less than one dollar are not unusual. The car is light in weight, and tires give more mileage on a Ford than on any other car.

You can buy a Ford for yourself and one for your wife for the price of one car at $1000. You can run both Fords at about the same expense as for one larger, heavier car.

You can always sell a "used" Ford at a good price. You have to accept a big reduction for a "used" larger car.

Go and take a ride in the 1917 model. See how comfortable it is. And stylish, too—stream line effect, tapered hood, crown fenders, beautiful finish. You need one for business. Your wife and children need one for pleasure and health.

and agreement. The Hydro Commission could not by Order-in-Council, be vested with powers which the Government does not possess, and the authority given the Commission in no way assumes to do so. Neither has the Municipal Council the power to amend or even modify that agreement.

Recently I heard a legal gentleman assert that the parties to an agreement have the right to amend such agreement at any time they may mutually agree. This in defence of a modification of the Seymour Power Co. agreement by simple resolution of the council.

If that were so, any by-law receiving the approval of the ratepayers, might immediately after be amended by the Council, and the grossest deception be designedly and with collusion practiced on the ratepayers with impunity.

The Committee and Chapter are much indebted during the past week
to many kind friends for valuable assistance in many departments of our work, and we extend to all mentioned, below our very sincere and appreciative thanks. The Rev. A. J. Wilson has very kindly given us a very acceptable donation for the Major Arthur McGreer Soup Kitchen Fund;
Mrs. C. M. Weese, an equally acceptable gift for the Belgian Children's Fund; while James H. Moffat's generous contribution of $5.00 for our patriotic work is much appreciated. Mrs.
D. Green has been working for us very faithfully for some time past, and last week sent in eight beautifully made
hospital night-shirts; the Wieses Lee and their sister, Mrs. Perry, have also been working in our interests, and returned last week some night-shirts
made and laundered in the best possible manner, and some very nice knitting done by Mrs. Perry; Mrs.
Thos. Herrington brought us in two large size feather pillows which she made up and donated for hospital
use; and the Misses McGreer, Bridge street, kindly sent us a large parcel of clothing for the Belgians, and we are very grateful to all these kind
workers for their assistance. Mrs. Geo Shorey, of the Palace Road, is one of our "old reliable" workers upon whom we can always depend for a steady supply of most excellent articles.

Our work-room is open as usual
every Thursday and Saturday after-

MARKO'S DILEMMA.

An Old Servian Legend of a Prophecy
and its Fulfillment.

Prilep, in Servia, is dear to the hearts of all Servian peasants, for around it cluster countless stories of one of the nation's most popular legendary supermen—Marko Kraljevitich,
otherwise King's Son Marko.

The ruins of the castle of King's Son Marko overlook the town, and if the visitor proves to be a sympathetic auditor the guide will no doubt point out
to him in the slabs of rock which strew the approach to the stronghold
the indelible hoof prints of the master's favorite steed, Sharatz. And if you should happen to be in Prilep on the anniversary of Marko's festival, or
"slava," you can prove to your own
satisfaction whether there is any truth
in the widely credited peasant legend
that at midnight the doors of the castle
chapel burst open and the hero, fully armed, rides in on his piebald charger,
although the Marko of the flesh has been dead for 500 years.

In an old Servian ballad called "Mar-ko's Judgment" there is recited this prophecy: Kral (King) Vukashine, Mar-
ko's father, whose chief fortified city
was Prilep, speaks, first: "Son Marko, may God slay thee! Thou shalt have neither monument nor posterity, and ere thy spirit leaves thy body the Turkish sultan thou shalt serve."
Then speaks the czar, Stephen Dushan:
"Friend Marko, may God help thee!
Bright be thy face in the senate, sharp
thy sword in battle. Never shall hero surpass thee. And thy name shall be remembered so long as sun and moon
endure."

And here, according to peasant folklore, is how that prophecy was fulfilled: Upon the death of Vukashine, La-zar Hreblianovitch, Count of Sirmium,
was elected czar. Bitterly disappointed
at the failure of his own candidacy, Marko threatened the life of Lazar and was forthwith deprived of his fief. Pen-niless and disheartened, Marko turned to the court of the hated sultan and enlisted in his army to fight the Moslems of Asia Minor. (It should be remembered that it was no disgrace for a Servian to fight with the Turks provided the opposing forces were other Turks, for a Turk less, in whatever cause slain, was a blessing in the eyes of the Servians.)

In time, however, Marko's command
was brought west to wage war against the orthodox prince of the Roumans.
Loyal to his Mohammedan sovereign,
when he came upon the field of battle, Marko's heart failed him when he saw
the men of his own faith drawn up against him, and, facing the dilemma
of choosing between proving traitor to his chief or lifting his sword against
those of his own faith, he cried out,
"Oh, God, do thou this day destroy all those who fight against Christendom
and foremost Marko!" Saying which, he threw his body on the Christian spears and died without striking a blow. — Express (Montreal) Society

Wonderful Revelation of Hun Atrocities.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Association Press, British Headquarters in France, March 26th, (via London)—This is the story of the priest of Voyennes, Monsieur Le Cure Caron, who stood to-day in the shadow of the still hot walls of his church, which had been set alight by the Germans, the day they slipped away from this plain little village perched above the valley of the Somme. Flashes of passionate protest mingled with a spirit of proud resignation in his recital of the life at Voyennes during the two and a half years of German control—a civil imprisonment, which ended Monday last when through field-glasses from the loft of his presbytery the priest, who was also

Acting Mayor, saw four khaki-clad horsemen on the road and knew that the Germans had gone and British relief was at hand.

A few minutes later a French cavalry patrol appeared, and the allies had formed a new link in the pursuit of the common foe. To-day the booming of the guns in this pursuit could be heard over a stretch of eighty battle miles.

CUT OFF FROM THE WORLD.

The cure told how a few narrow scars in the earth, known as German trenches, ribbons of barbed wire behind them and a bit of shell-torn waste called "No Man's Land" had isolated a section of the French people from their country as effectually as if they had been suddenly transplanted to another hemisphere. He told how at Voyennes women, children and old men lived and toiled for the invaders in utter ignorance of what was going on in the world about them, just as other thousands still shut within the German lines are living, toiling and wondering to-day. They were told long ago that their beautiful Paris was to fall within a week and would be pillaged and burned.

Later they were told, "Paris is dead," and the Germans added insult to injury, the old priest exclaimed, by pronouncing it "Paris" instead of "Paree."

"WE WOULD BREAK YOUR PRIDE"

The inhabitants of Voyennes submitted to enemy domination with heads erect and patient calmness the Germans could not understand. "We would break your pride," Prussian officers declared, "and make you slaves. All France shall fall at our feet."

Pale, drawn and old, as was the cure, nevertheless he seemed imbued with sudden, defiant strength as he raised himself to his full height and continued:

"I told them that never again would France yield to such a foe. They taunted us, and said they would crush Europe in a few months. We replied that France would fight five years and more if necessary. Sometimes they laughed scornfully at this, but lately they could not contain their fury that the war was lasting so long."

"And did the people suffer much?" he was asked.

AMERICANS SAVED THOUSANDS.

"Ah, yes," he replied. "Our food did not last long. Then we had to work for the Germans and take what they gave us. Sometimes it was so bad that even the cats refused to eat. Then the Americans began to feed us, and that saved thousands of lives. Our people are very grateful. 'But let us not dwell on the physical side to-day, but speak of the mental and moral anguish we endured, for it seemed like the span of a hundred years. It has left us all but imbecilic. I scarce can keep my vagrant thoughts together.'"

Last Sunday, when early Mass was over, the German Commandant at Voyennes appeared at the church with a party of soldiers bearing petrol cans. He bluntly told the priest that he was tired of the war, and, as one means of bringing the end nearer, he was going to burn the church. The priest thought it was a cruel jest, until he was escorted to his house and held prisoner there. He was compelled to look on impotently while the inflammable liquid was sprayed

LAYING TRACKS ON HEELS OF TROOPS.

F. A. Wray, staff correspondent of The New York Tribune with the British army in France, sends the following despatch to his paper under date of Sunday:

"I have just been watching the sight of a great army pursuing a foe. I have been trying to realize, to comprehend the amazing labor and effort such a process involves.

"The lines which the British held for four months before Bapaume are deserted. When I came to Bapaume last Friday the British troops were miles ahead—how far none knew exactly, tho in the distance the boom of field pieces could be constantly heard. Neither side was using heavy guns then—the time for them had not yet arrived.

"The road from Albert, where the statue of the Virgin juts horizontally from top of the ruined cathedral tower, but still miraculously holds in place, right up to and past Bapaume was an unforgettable spectacle. The British soldiers had passed that way days before, and now everything necessary to push the Boche back past the Hindenburg line of defence was being brought up for their support. The road everywhere was crowded with every kind of vehicle. I passed hundreds and hundreds of huge motor lorries bearing supplies of all descriptions.

IN WAKE OF TROOPS.

Red Cross ambulances sped by at great speed. Teams of American mules were hauling great wagons piled high with thousands of loaves of bread and sides of beef. Panting horses were drawing wagons laden with munitions of war. Others were bringing up huge loads of fodder, or, perhaps, tins of cocoa or condensed milk. Occasionally a powerful automobile filled with staff officers threaded its way through the throng of vehicles. From dawn until dusk this 20-mile procession went on unceasingly. About every mile in the traffic line a policeman with a red flag regulated it, and with an autocratic authority kept it moving in order. That would have been a strange sight on any road; on this it was most exotic.

"It was a stupendous task moving these supplies along the road. It was not built for two lines of heavy traffic even in normal times. And since the beginning of the war it had been shelled persistently. Every yard there was a pitted shellhole. Occasionally these craters were ten feet in diameter and six feet deep. In addition to this, in several places the Germans had blown up the road when they were near Bapaume.

LABOR BATTALION'S WORK.

To put this road in passable shape in two or three days had been a great feat for the British labor battalions, worthy of tribute even under the most favorable circumstances. Wearing their steel helmets, the road-making gangs were kept working night and day along its entire length. They are still working. There is no time to use ordinary material. The men take bricks from the ruined villages nearby, fill up the shell holes and roll them level whenever they get the chance. Where there is a mine crater they just build the roads

KAISER OPPOSES THE BREAK UNITED

The abdication of the German emperor is forecast by a German magistrate, who, in a celebrated book, "I Accuse," an interview published in (says: "The Kaiser is obstinate, thought that he is responsible for the war, a thought which whole existence. He feels menaced by three enemies without counting those at the Crown Prince, the Kaiser of the war; second, is the Germanists—you cannot in smouldering hatred of the Kaiser for those whom he believes maniacs, who are driving the Kaiser's party, but the Kaiser is growing in number, and by little against those who led the war.

The other day at the the Parliamentary president Ministers of the Federal S which the submarine war ed upon, the struggle t Kaiser's party and that o itz was most bitter. Th against the Emperor was however, that he was submit, and pretend that vinced. In particular, he ally opposed to a break ent Wilson, but he was consent. # THE WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE.

DOWN ON THE GAMBLERS.

Race track gambling, particularly during the war came in for a great battering from Liberal members in the Legislature. It was Lambert Wigle, member for South Essex, who brought the matter before the House.
He objected particularly to the establishment last year of two more race
tracks in the vicinity of Windsor,
which makes a total of three, in that city alone, operating 42 days in the year. "In this time of war," said Mr.
Wigle, "we need every bit of our energy and strength for the successful prosecution of the war." He thought that the allowing of race track gambling was a crying shame. Professional gamblers and crooks, driven out from the States, were finding a place to carry out their designs in Ontario.

Sam Carter, M. P. P. for South
Wellington, thought that race track
gambling in Ontario was an outrageous scandal. Men sitting in high places were making fortunes through their connection with race tracks. Mr.
McGarry declared that the government could not keep these tracks out and that all they had done was to license
them to obtain a revenue. Mr. Carter, however, felt that the government
could have prevented this state of af-
airs by placing the license fee at a prohibitive rate. Mr. McGarry thought that such a proceeding might be declared illegal.

WHAT'S AN "ATRIUM?"

Ordinary every-day citizens of Ont-
in their own homes call it a "front
hall" but in Government House, which the people of Ontario are paying for
with their money during war time, it is called the "atrium" and the marble
alone in the "atrium" cost the province $20,000 and the total expense in this part of the building will run well
over $30,000.

This is one of the latest sensational details brought to light in the Public Accounts Committee. Another point brought out is that the government
sent its architect to New York to visit homes of some of the great millionaires of the United States to get suggestions for furnishing Government House. In addition the former Minister of Public Works, Dr. Reaume, went to Europe to visit the elaborate chateaux of that continent, also to get suggestions for furnishing Ontario's Government House.

As one of the members of the committee pointed out, not only should Ontario not ape the extravagances of American millionaires, but there is also
this difference that the New Yorkers,
at least paid for their own houses,
whereas this palace is being built with the money of the people of Ontario, not 1% of whom ever visit the place.

BIG SALARY INCREASES.

Governmental economy, especially during the war, is being urged vigorously by the Liberals in the Legislature.
Not only are they condemning in the warmest kind of way the extravagant
expenditures on Government House,
but they are also dealing with other
aspects of the question.

C. M. Bowman, Chief Liberal Whip,
led a debate in the House deprecating
the unnecessary multiplication of government officials during the past
twelve years, whereby there are practically two officials in the Inside Service
today for every one in the year 1904.
Mr. Bowman also contended that owing to the prevailing war conditions,
the time was inopportune for the gen-

ployed in the public service, especially
of those already in receipt of substantial salaries of $2000 per year and upwards.

The government voted down his resolution that the cost of civil government should not be further increased at this time except where essential to ensure its efficiency and that no permanent increases in salaries of $2000 and upwards should be made at this time.

Mr. Dewart, during the debate, referred particularly to the case of the Deputy Register General, who is receiving an increase of $800 or 50% of his present salary. This official, Mr.
Dewart said, was the brother-in-law of the Assistant Provincial Secretary and from another brother-in-law of the same officer in Sarnia, the drugs for government institutions all over the province had been purchased.

ITEMS.

Sir Adam Beck made a slashing attack against Mackenzie & Mann and other big railway interests and claimed that water power had been stolen from the people. Mr. Rowell said that the people of Canada hadn't received the transportation facilities they were entitled to and believed they would not be satisfied with the consolidation of the railways under private ownership.

The whole system of lines would have to be operated for the benefit of the public.

Sam Carter's motion for adequate treatment by the government of the urgent and serious problem of the feble-minded in Ontario was rejected
as in past years. "It makes your blood
boil," said Alen Studholme, Independent Labor member of East Hamilton, "when you see how this problem is being allowed to drift by the government."

The Finance Minister estimates that

CHAPTER I.

Jane Gerson, Buyer.

"I HAD two trunks—two, you ninny! Two! Ou est l'autre?"

The grinning customs guard lifted his shoulders to his ears and spread out his palms. "Mais, mam-selle!"

"Don't you 'mais' me, sir! I had two trunks—deux troncs—when I got aboard that wobbly old boat at Dover this morning, and I'm not going to budge from this wharf until I find the other one. Where did you learn your French, anyway? Can't you understand when I speak your language?"

The girl plumped herself down on top of the unhasped trunk and folded her arms truculently. With a quizzical smile the customs guard looked down into her brown eyes, smoldering dangerously now, and began all over again his speech of explanation.

"Wagon-lit?" She caught a familiar word. "Mais oui; that's where I want to go—aboard your wagon-lit, for Paris. Voila!" The girl carefully gave the word three syllables. "Mon ticket pour Parée!" She opened her patent leather reticule, rummaged furiously there-

into a French gentleman's spread newspaper and finally was catapulted into a vacant space next to the window on the carriage's far side. She giggled, tucked the skirts of her pearl gray duster about her, righted the chic sailor hat on her chestnut brown head and patted a stray wisp of hair back into place. Her meteor flight into and through the carriage disturbed her not a whit.

As for the Samaritan, he stood uncertainly in the narrow cross aisle, swaying to the swing of the carriage and reconnoitering seating possibilities. There was a place, a very narrow one, next to the fat Fleming; also there was a vacant place next to Jane Gerson. The Samaritan caught the girl's glance in his indecision, read in it something frankly comradely and chose the seat beside her.

"Very good of you. I'm sure," he murmured. "I did not wish to presume!"

"You're not," the girl assured, and there was something so fresh, so ingenuous, in the tone and the level glance of her brown eyes that the Samaritan felt all at once distinctly satisfied with the cast of fortune that had thrown him in the way of a distressed traveler. He sat down with a lifting of the checkered alpine hat he wore and a stiff little bow from the waist.

"If I may, Miss Gerson—I am Captain Woodhouse of the signal service."

"Oh!" The girl let slip a little gasp, the meed of admiration the feminine heart always pays to shoulder straps. "Signal service; that means the army?"

"His majesty's service, yes, Miss Gerson."

"You are, of course, off duty?" she suggested, with the faintest possible tinge of regret at the absence of the stripes and buttons that spell "soldier" with the woman.

"You might say so, Miss Gerson. Egypt—the Nile country—is my station. I am on my way back there after a bit of a vacation at home—London I mean, of course."

She stole a quick side glance at the face of her companion. A soldier's face it was, lean and school hardened and competent. Lines about the eyes and mouth—the stamp of the sun and the imprint of the habit of command—had taken from Captain Woodhouse's features something of freshness and youth, though giving to them the

—where I go again—slang; 'vulgar American slang,' you'll call it. If I could only rattle off the French as easily as I do New Yorkese I'd be a wonder. I mean I'm afraid I won't make good."

"Oh!"

"But why should I worry about coming over alone?" Jane urged. "Lots of American girls come over here alone with an American flag pinned to their shirt waists and wearing a Baedeker for a wrist watch. Nothing ever happens to them."

Captain Woodhouse looked out on the flying panorama of straw thatched houses and fields heavy with green grain. He seemed to be balancing words. He glanced at the passenger across the aisle, a wizened little man, asleep. In a lowered voice he began:

"A woman alone—over here on the continent at this time! Why, I very much fear she will have great difficulties when the—ah—trouble comes."

"Trouble?" Jane's eyes were questioning.

"I do not wish to be an alarmist, Miss Gerson," Captain Woodhouse continued, hesitant. "Calamity knows we've had enough calamity shouters among the Unionists at home. But have you considered what you would do—how you would get back to America in case of—war?" The last word was almost a whisper.

"War?" she echoed. "Why, you don't mean all this talk in the papers is?"

"Is serious, yes," Woodhouse answered quietly; "very serious."

"Why, Captain Woodhouse, I thought you had war talk every summer over here, just as our papers are filled each spring with gossip about how Wagner is going to retire from the game or the Yanks are going to be sold. It's your regular midsummer outdoor sport over here this stirring up the animals."

Woodhouse smiled, though his gray eyes were filled with something not mirth.

"I fear the animals are—stirred, as you say, too far this time," he resumed. "The assassination of the Archduke Ferd!"

"Yes, I remember I did read something about that in the papers at home. But archdukes and kings have been killed before and no war came of it. In Mexico they murder a president before he has a chance to send out 'At home' cards."

"Europe is so different from Mexico," her companion continued, the lines of his face deepening. "I am afraid you over in the states do not know the dangerous politics here; you are so far away; you should thank God for that. You are not in a land where one man—or two or three—may say, 'We will now go to war,' and then you go, willy nilly."

The seriousness of the captain's speech and the fear that he could not keep from his eyes sobered the girl. She looked out on the sun drenched plains of Pas de Calais, where toy villages, hedged fields and squat farmhouses lay all in order, established, seeming for all time in the comfortable doze of security. The plodding manikins in the fields, the slumberous oxen drawing the harrows amid the beet rows, pigeons circling over the straw hatches by the tracks' sides—all this denied the possibility of war's corrosion.

"Don't you think everybody is suffering from a bad dream when they

"I hope," the girl said as she handed her into a taxi—"I hope that war comes it will find Egypt, far away from the front."

"Not a fair thing to wish in the service," Woodhouse laughed. "I may be more! I say my best wish for you when the war comes it will long way from Paris. Good-bye, Miss Gerson, and good luck."

Captain Woodhouse stood together and hat in hand, with a trundled off, a farewell flash of eyes rewarding him for the correctness of his courtesy hurried to another station train not for a Mediterranean distant Egypt, but for Berlin.

CHAPTER II.

From the Wilhelmstrasse

"I T would be wiser German," the woman said. "In these times of English speech I

"The guard, you see, does not understand good French."

In, brought out a handkerchief, a tiny mirror, a packet of rice papers and at last a folded and punched ticket. This she displayed with a triumphant flourish.

"Voilà! Il dit 'Miss Jane Gerson'—that's me—moi-meme, I mean. And il dit 'deux trunks.' Now, you can't go behind that, can you? Where is that other trunk?"

"Pardon, but if I may be of any assistance"—

Miss Gerson turned. A tallish man in a gray lounge suit stood beel together and bent stiffly in a bow, nothing of the beau or the boulevardier about his face or manner. Miss Gerson accepted his intervention as heaven sent.

"Oh, thank you ever so much! The guard, you see, doesn't understand good French. I just can't make him understand that one of my trunks is missing, and the train for Paris!"

Already the stranger was rattling incisive French at the guard. That official bowed low and, with hands and lips, gave rapid explanation. The man in the gray lounge suit turned to the girl.

"A little misunderstanding. Miss—ah!"

"Gerson—Jane Gerson of New York," she promptly supplied.

"A little misunderstanding, Miss Gerson. The customs guard says your other trunk has already been examined, passed and placed on the baggage van. He was trying to tell you that it would be necessary for you to permit a porter to take this trunk to the train before time for starting. With your permission!"

The stranger turned and balled to a porter, who came running. Miss Gerson had the trunk locked and strapped in no time, and it was on the shoulders of the porter.

"You have very little time, Miss Gerson. The train will be making a start directly. If I might—ah—pilot you through the station to the proper train shed. I am not presuming?"

"You are very kind," she answered hurriedly.

They set off, the providential Samaritan in the lead. Through the waiting room and on to a broad platform, almost deserted, they went. A guard's whistle shrilled. The stranger tucked a helping hand under Jane Gerson's arms to steady her in the sharp sprint down a long aisle between tracks to where the Paris train stood. It began to move before they had reached its midlength. A guard threw open a carriage door, in they hopped, and with a rattle of chains and banging of buffers the Express du Nord was off on its arrow flight from Calais to the capital.

The carriage, which was of the second class, was comfortably filled. Miss Gerson stumbled over the feet of a puffy Fleming nearest the door, was launched into the lap of a comfortably upholstered widow on the opposite seat, ricocheted back to jam an elbow and the imprint of the habit to command—had taken from Captain Woodhouse's features something of freshness and youth, though giving in return the index of inflexible will and lust for achievement. His smooth lips were a bit thin, Jane Gerson thought, and the outshooting chin, almost squared at the angles, marked Captain Woodhouse as anything but a trifler or a flirt. She was satisfied that nothing of presumption or forwardness on the part of this hard molded chap from Egypt would give her cause to regret her unconventional offer of friendship.

Captain Woodhouse in his turn had made a satisfying, though covert, appraisal of his traveling companion by means of a narrow mirror inset above the baggage rack over the opposite seat. Trim and petite of figure, which was just a shade under the average for height and plumpness; a small head set sturdily on a round, smooth neck; face the very embodiment of independence and self confidence, with its brown eyes wide apart, its high brow under the parting waves of golden chestnut, broad, humorous mouth and tiny nose slightly nibbled upward. Miss Up to the Minute New York, indeed! From the cocked red feather in her hat to the dainty spatted boots Jane Gerson appeared in Woodhouse's eyes a perfect, virile, vividly alive American girl. He'd met her kind before; had seen them browbeating bazaar merchants in Cairo and riding desert donkeys like strong young queens. The type appealed to him.

The first stiffness of informal meeting wore away speedily. The girl tactfully directed the channel of conversation into lines familiar to Woodhouse. What was Egypt like? Who owned the pyramids, and why didn't the owners plant a park around them and charge admittance? Didn't he think Rameses and all those other old pharaohs had the right idea in advertising—putting up stone billboards to last all time? The questions came crisp and startling; Woodhouse found himself chuckling at the shrewd incisiveness of them. Rameses an advertiser and the pyramids stone hoardings to carry all those old boys' fame through the ages! He'd never looked on them in that light before.

"I say, Miss Gerson, you'd make an excellent business person, now, really," the captain voiced his admiration.

"Just cable that at my expense to old Pop Hildebrand, of Hildebrand's department store, New York," she flashed back at him. "I'm trying to convince him of just that very thing."

"Really, now—a department shop! What, may I ask, do you have to do for—ah—Pop Hildebrand?"

"Oh, I'm his foreign buyer," Jane answered, with a conscious note of pride. "I'm over here to buy gowns for the winter season, you see."

"And this Hildebrand, he sends you over here alone just to buy pretties for New York's wonderful women? Aren't you just a bit—ah—nervous to be over in this part of the world—alone?"

"Not in the least," the girl caught him up. "Not about the alone part, I should say. Maybe I'm fidgety and sort of worried about making good on the job. This is my first trip—my very first as a buyer for Hildebrand. And, of course, if I should fall down!"

"Don't you think everybody is suffering from a bad dream when they say there's to be fighting?" she queried. "Surely it is impossible that folks over here would all consent to destroy this." She waved toward the peaceful countryside.

"A bad dream, yes. But one that will end in a nightmare," he answered. "Tell me, Miss Gerson, when will you be through with your work in Paris and on your way back to America?"

"Not for a month, that's sure. Maybe I'll be longer if I like the place."

Woodhouse pondered.

"A month. This is the 10th of July. I am afraid—I say, Miss Gerson, please do not set me down for a meddler—this short acquaintance and all that—but may I not urge on you that you finish your work in Paris and get back to England at least in two weeks?" The captain had turned and was looking into the girl's eyes with an earnest intensity that startled her. "I cannot tell you all I know, of course. I may not even know the truth, though I think I have a bit of it, right enough. But one of your sort—to be caught alone on this side of the water by the madness that is brewing! By George, I do not like to think of it!"

"I thank you, Captain Woodhouse, for your warning," Jane answered him, and impulsively she put out her hand to his. "But, you see, I'll have to run the risk. I couldn't go scampering back to New York like a scared pussycat just because somebody starts a war

"I thank you, Captain Woodhouse, for your warning."

over here. I'm on trial. This is my first trip as buyer for Hildebrand, and it's a case of make or break with me. War or no war, I've got to make good. Anyway"—with a toss of her round little chin—"I'm an American citizen, and nobody'll dare to start anything with me."

"Right you are!" Woodhouse beamed his admiration. "Now we'll talk about those skyscrapers of yours. Everybody back from the States has something to say about those famous buildings, and I'm fairly burning for first hand information from one who knows them."

Laughingly she acquiesced, and the grim shadow of war was pushed away from them, though hardly forgotten by either.

So the afternoon sped, and when the sun dropped over the maze of spires and chimney pots that was Paris each felt regret at parting.

"Your number in the Wilhelm-mark once before in Rome. All right.

Now listen, Louisa. What I'm going to tell you about where Brussels stands in this—this business that's brewing will make the German general staff sit up." The woman inclined her head toward Capper's. He, looking not at her, but out over the rich
plain of brocades, broadcloths and gleaming shoulders, began in a mono-
tone:

"When the war comes—the day the war starts—French artillerymen will be behind the guns at Namur. The English!"

The Hungarian orchestra of forty strings swept into a wild gypsy chant.
Dissonances, fierce and barbaric, swept
like angry tides over the brilliant floor of the cafe. Still Capper talked on,
and the woman called Louisa bent her jewel starred head to listen. Her face,
the face of a fine animal, was set in rapt attention.

"You mark my words," he finished,
"when the German army enters Brus-

Capper eagerly reached for his glass

waiter.

"I'll buy this one, Louisa," he said
grandiloquently. "Can't have a lady

the order. "You're going to slip me
some banknotes tonight—right now,

anxiously honed his cheeks with a hand that trembled. The woman's eyes were narrowed in thought.

"If I give you anything tonight, Billy Capper, you'll get drunker than you

"Louisa, Louisa, don't say that!"
Great fear and great yearning sat in Capper's filmed eyes. "You know I'm

the final line of a Germanized coon
song, the cymbals clanged "Zam-m-m!"
and folk about the clustered tables pattered applause. Captain Woodhouse,
at a table by himself, pulled a wafer
of a watch from his waistcoat pocket,
glanced at its face and looked back at the rococo entrance arches, through which the late comers were streaming.
"Henry Sherman, do you think Kitty ought to see this sort of thing? It's positively indecent!"

The high pitched nasal complaint
came from a table a little to the right of the one where Woodhouse was sitting.

"There, there, mother! Now, don't go taking all the joy outa life just because you're seeing something that would make the minister back in Kewanee roll his eyes in horror."

Out of the tail of his eye Woodhouse
could see the family group wherein
Mrs. Grundy had sat down to make a fourth. A blocky little man with a red face and a pinky bald head, whose clothes looked as if they had been whipsawed out of the bolt; a comfortably stout matron wearing a bonnet which even to the untutored masculine eye betrayed its provincialism;

at Malta—a word placed in the right direction will fix that—and you will go on to Alexandria to do the real work."

"Good, good!" Woodhouse agreed.
"The Wilhelmstrasse will give him a number and send him on this mission
on my recommendation. I had that assurance before ever I met the fellow tonight. They—the big people—know little Capper's reputation, and, as a matter of fact, I think they are convinced he's a little less dangerous working for the Wilhelmstrasse than against it. At Malta the arrest—the firing squad at dawn—and the English
are convinced they've nipped something big in the bud, whereas they've
only put out of the way a dangerous
little weasel who's ready to bite any hand that feeds him."

the eyes of the woman called Louisa.
It was alert, appraising.

"But if there should be some slip-
up at Malta," he interjected; "if somehow this Capper should get through to Alexandria, wouldn't that make it somewhat embarrassing for me?"

"Not at all, my dear Woodhouse," she caught him up, with a little pat on his hand. "His instructions will be

"Yes, yes; get me a job with the Wilhelmstrasse, Louisa!" Capper was babbling in an agony of eagerness. "You know my work. You can vouch for me, and you needn't mention that business of the Lord Fisher letters; you were tarred pretty much with the same brush there, Louisa. But, come, be a good sport; pay me at least half of what you think my info's worth and I'll take the rest out in salary checks if you get me that job. I'm broke, Louisa!" His voice cracked in a sob. "Absolutely stony broke!"

She sat toying with the stem of her wineglass while Capper's clasped hands on the table opened and shut themselves without his volition. Finally she made a swift move of one hand to her bodice, withdrew it with a bundle of notes crinkling between the fingers.

"Three hundred marks now, Billy Capper," she said. The man echoed the words lovingly. "Three hundred now and my promise to try to get a number for you with—my people. That's fair?"

"Fair as can be, Louisa." He stretched out clawlike fingers to receive the thin sheaf of notes she counted from her roll. "Here comes the wine—the wine I'm buying. We'll drink to my success at landing a job with—your people."

"For me no more tonight," the woman answered. "My cape, please." She rose.

"But, I say!" Capper protested. "Just one more bottle—the bottle I'm buying. See, here it is all proper and cooled. Marks the end of my bad luck, so it does. You won't refuse to drink with me to my good luck that's coming?"

"Your good luck is likely to stop short with that bottle, Billy Capper," she said, her lips parting in a smile half scornful. "You know how wine has played you before. Better stop now while luck's with you."

"Hanged if I do!" he answered stubbornly. "After these months of hand to mouth and begging for a nasty pint of ale in a common pub—leave good wine when it's right under my nose? Not me!" Still protesting against her refusal to drink with him the wine he would pay for himself—the man made that a point of injured honor—Capper grudgingly helped place the cape of web lace over his companion's white shoulders and accompanied her to her taxi.

"If you're here this time tomorrow night and sober," were her farewell words, "I may bring you your number in the—you understand; that and your commission to duty."

"God bless you, Louisa, girl!" Capper stammered thickly. "I'll not fail you."

The orchestra was booming a rag-time, and the chorus on the stage of the Winter Garden came plunging to the footlights, all in line, their black legs kicking out from the skirts like thrusting spindles in some marvelous engine of stagecraft. They screeched fortably stout matron wearing a bonnet which even to the untutored masculine eye betrayed its provincialism; a slim slip of a girl of about nineteen with a face like a choir boy's—these were the American tourists whose voices had attracted Woodhouse's attention. He played an amused eavesdropper, all the more interested because they were Americans and since a certain day on the Calais-Paris express a week or so gone he'd had reason to be interested in all Americans.

"Henry, I tell you he does look like Albert Downs—the living image!" This from the woman, sotto voce.

"Sh, mother! What would Albert Downs be doing in Berlin?"

"Well, Kitty, they say curiosity once killed a cat, but I'm going to have a better look. I'd swear!"

Woodhouse was slightly startled when he saw the woman from America utilize the clumsy subterfuge of a dropped handkerchief to step into a position whence she could look at his face squarely. Also he was annoyed. He did not care to be stared at under any circumstances, particularly at this time. The alert and curious lady saw his flush of annoyance, flushed herself and joined her husband and daughter.

"Well, if I didn't know Albert Downs had a lively business which he couldn't well leave," floated back the hoarse whisper, "I'd say that was him setting right there in that chair."

"Come, mother, bedtime and after—in Berlin," was the old gentleman's admonition. Woodhouse heard their retreating footsteps and laughed in spite of his temporary chagrin at the American woman's curiosity. He was just reaching for his watch a second time when a quick step sounded on the gravel behind him. He turned. A woman of ripe beauty had her hand outstretched in welcome. She was the one Billy Capper had called Louisa. Captain Woodhouse rose and grasped her hand warmly.

"Ah! So good of you! I've been expecting!"

"Yes; I'm late. I could not come earlier." Salutation and answer were in German, fluently spoken on the part of each.

"You will not be followed?" Woodhouse asked, assisting her to sit. She laughed shortly.

"Hardly, when a bottle of champagne is my rival. The man will be well entertained—too well."

"I have been thinking," Woodhouse continued gravely, "that a place hardly as public as this would have been better for our meeting. Perhaps—"

"You fear the English agents? Pah! They have ears for keyholes only; they do not expect to use them in a place where there is light and plenty of people. You know their clumsiness." Woodhouse nodded. His eyes traveled slowly over the bold beauty of the woman's face.

CHAPTER III.

Billy Capper at Play.

THE man Capper will do for the stalking horse—a willing nag," went on the woman in a half-whisper across the table. "You know the ways of the Wilhelmstrasse. Capper is what we call 'the target.' The English suspect him. They will catch him; you get his number and do the work in safety. We have one man to draw their fire, another to accomplish the deed. We'll let the English bag him

"Not at all, my dear Woodhouse," she caught him up, with a little pat on his hand. "His instructions will be only to report to So-and-so at Alexandria. He will not have the slightest notion what work he is to do there. You can slip in unsuspected by the English, and the trick will be turned."

For a minute Woodhouse sat watching the cavortings of a dancer on the stage. Finally he put a question judiciously:

"The whole scheme then is?"

"This," she answered quickly. "Captain Woodhouse—the real Woodhouse, you know—is to be transferred from his present post at Wady Halfa, on the Nile, to Gibraltar. Transfer is to be announced in the regular way within a week. As a member of the signal service he will have access to the signal tower on the rock when he takes his new post, and that, as you know, will be very important."

"Very important!" Woodhouse echoed dryly.

"This Woodhouse arrives in Alexandria to await the steamer from Suez to Gib. He has no friends there—that much we know. Three men of the Wilhelmstrasse are waiting there, whose business it is to see that the real Woodhouse does not take the boat for Gib. They expect a man from Berlin to come to them bearing a number from the Wilhelmstrasse—the man who is to impersonate Woodhouse and as such take his place in the garrison on the Rock. There are two others of the Wilhelmstrasse at Gibraltar already. They, too, are eagerly awaiting the arrival of 'Woodhouse' from Alexandria. Capper, with a number, will start from Berlin for Alexandria. Capper will never arrive in Alexandria. You will."

"Capper will not arrive in Alexandria. You will."

"With a number—the number expected?" the man asked.

"If you are clever en route—yes," she answered, with a smile. "Wine, remember, is Billy Capper's best friend—and worst enemy."

"Then I will hear from you as to the time and route of departure for Alexandria?"

"To the very hour, yes. And now, dear friend!"

Keep hens this year

EGG and poultry prices, the like of which have seldom or never been experienced, certainly make it worth anyone's while to start keeping hens. By doing so you have fresh eggs at the most trifling cost. At the same time you have the splendid satisfaction of knowing that you are doing something towards helping Britain, Canada and the Allies achieve victory this year.

Increased production of food helps not only to lower the high cost of living, but it helps to increase the urgently needed surplus of Canada's food for export. It saves money otherwise spent for eggs and poultry at high prices, and saves the labor of others whose effort is needed for more vital war work.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture will give every possible assistance by affording information about poultry keeping. Write for free bulletin which tells how to keep hens (address below).

"A vegetable garden for every home"

Nothing should be overlooked in this vital year of the war. The Department earnestly invites everyone to help increase production by growing vegetables. Even the smallest plot of ground, when properly cultivated, produces a surprising amount of vegetables. Experience is not essential.

On request the Department of Agriculture will send valuable literature, free of charge, giving complete directions for preparing soil, planting, cultivation, etc. A plan of a vegetable garden, indicating suitable crop to grow, best varieties and their arrangement in the garden, will be sent free to any address.

NEW INSECT ENEMY.

A Pest That Preys on the Peach and Kindred Fruits.

An insect enemy of the peach and kindred fruits new to the United States is active in the vicinity of the District of Columbia and may have spread to other portions of the country. The pest causes serious damage to both the growing trees and the fruit and, owing to its habits of feeding, is particularly difficult to destroy by poison sprays. The bureau of entomology of the department has so far found the insect only in the District of Columbia and in adjoining portions of Virginia and Maryland. The bureau is anxious to receive reports from horticulturists in other parts of the country who may have noted the insect or its work.

In its adult form the insect is a brownish moth. It damages trees and fruit, however, while in its larval stage, which is a small white and pink caterpillar. The larva attacks both the tender sprouts of the trees and the fruit, causing serious losses. Its presence can best be determined in most cases by the appearance of injured trees. It bores into practically every tender twig and causes new shoots to push out from lateral buds. These are attacked in turn, the abnormal stimulation of lateral growth producing a much branched and bushy plant. A copious flow of gum from the twig ends often follows the attacks of the caterpillars.

The larva also attacks the fruit, generally eating its way through the skin

Making the Little Farm Pay

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

A story of real success with poultry comes to hand occasionally and makes interesting reading for almost everybody. The truthful history of Henry Fenn's chicken farm, the greatest poultry plant in Michigan, has a romantic sound.

Fifteen years ago Henry's father gave to him a dozen choice White Leghorns and an acre of land containing a small building. The boy was then thirteen years old. Henry had $72 in the bank, and with this for working capital he started his career. The story in his own words follows:

"Yes, I think I have done fairly well considering the start I had. I am twenty-eight and find that I have grown from a weakling to a strong man, and I do not believe there is any danger of my ever being a burden of expense to the county for my support. When my chicken house was built and my little brood housed in it I believe there was never a happier boy on earth. Father allowed me to cut my cedar posts from his land, so they cost me nothing but the work. The fifty-six rods of wire fencing cost me exactly $42. My Leghorn hens did not seem to possess much maternal spirit, for they neither took time from their laying to hatch eggs nor attend to the chicks when hatched, so I borrowed some Plymouth Rock hens from father and soon had my flock increased to 147. Before fall I had 336 and but $30 with which to buy the feed to carry them through the winter. In the spring I found myself $35 in debt.

"The next winter there were 579 chickens, out of which 300 were sold. The following spring I owned eleven incubators and sixteen brooders and had purchased sixteen acres of land.

ble, and I again ran behind. More than 100 chickens died, and I was feeling mighty blue. I took several farm and poultry journals and did my best to solve the problem of getting rich in the poultry business, but all of them demanded more capital than I possessed.

"I went to the bank and tried to borrow $500, but could not give sufficient security. Finally I persuaded an old uncle to let me have the money, giving a mortgage on my land and fowls. Being under age, I had to have my father's name on the note. Father was ready to do this, for he was satisfied that I would make good. With this money I built more houses and a large heating plant. They were all paid for before my mortgage came due. That was the last time I have ever borrowed money. I am now one of the directors in the bank that refused me the loan.

"There are now 137 acres, on which I have comfortable buildings for my self and stock. I have thirty chicken houses, 36 by 120 feet, all built of cement blocks, and a centrally located plant that keeps my colony houses warm and comfortable. There are forty-six acres devoted to chickens, and my three teams and two automobiles are busy much of the time in getting feed and taking the poultry to market or to the railroad station. I now turn off about eight tons of broilers, 12,000 dozen eggs and $3,000 worth of fancy stock each year. I employ nine men and two office girls, who run the type writers.

"The teams are busy each forenoon collecting food and in the afternoon at work upon the farm. The eggs average 32 cents a dozen the year round, and I have seldom been obliged to take less than 38 cents a pound for early spring broilers. I caponize all the male broilers before they are four weeks old and find that it pays to do so. I keep the Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red breeds for broilers, and the Leghorn and Wyandotte breeds for egg production and fancy stock.

"Last year the receipts from the farm were $12,747 and the expenses were $4,480, leaving me a net profit of $8,267, without considering, however, the interest on the investment. My fowls dispose of sixteen tons of alfalfa each year, 600 bushels of carrots, 1,200 bushels of beets and mangels, 3,000 heads of cabbage, five tons ground feed and from ten to fourteen tons of animal food. The last item does not cost very much, as I have made arrangements with butchers and refiners for their scraps and cracklings."

copious flow of gum from the twig ends often follows the attacks of the caterpillars.

The larva also attacks the fruit, generally eating its way through the skin at or near the point of attachment of the fruit stem.

The fact that the insect feeds upon the tender twig ends makes its destruction difficult since poison sprays cover the rapidly growing shoots for only a brief period after application. The bureau is attempting to work out methods by which the pest can be controlled.

Feeding Power of Plants.

Some interesting studies on the feeding power of plants have shown a theory which most thoughtful farmers will recognize as plausible. It is that plants which use plenty of lime are the best feeders. For instance, clover, alfalfa, peas and buckwheat are great users of lime and are known to be rich feeders. Corn, oats, rye and wheat are poor lime users and correspondingly easy on plant food.

WINTERING BEES.

In order to winter bees successfully it is often necessary to supply food for the colonies, asserts George A. Dean, professor of entomology in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"For supplying winter stores it is best to make a thick sirup—two and one-quarter or two and one-half parts of sugar to one part of water is preferable. In order to prevent granulation of sugar in the thick sirup, it is inverted by the addition of a teaspoonful of tartaric acid to twenty pounds of sugar while the sirup is being heated to dissolve the crystals. In the late fall sirup should be fed as rapidly as the bees take the sirup. In making the sirup one should take great care not to scorch the sugar. It should be as clear as if it were made with cold water.

"For spring feeding a thin sirup may be used even as dilute in proportions of one part of sugar to nine parts of water. As a rule, however, equal parts of each are used. Do not feed glucose or other cheap grades of sirups or molasses, especially for winter stores, as they contain substances indigestible to bees, causing dysentery.

"In case honey is fed the bees do not use honey from an unknown source because of danger of introducing disease. Some beekeepers believe it is cheaper to feed sugar sirup because of a higher market value of honey. Extracted honey should be diluted somewhat. It is perhaps a better plan to feed honey combs."

Housing in Open Sheds Feels Advantageous.

An experiment conducted several years at the Pennsylvania experiment station at State college the effect of housing dairy cattle in open sheds as compared with them in the ordinary barn has included the following lines: (1) The food required both conditions of housing milk yield under both conditions the effect upon the health of the animals; (2) the bedding required; (3) the difference in the natural content of milk.

From the data secured by the experiment it appears that cows housed in the open shed have keener appetites and consume more roughage kept in stables. The milk yield outside group in the experiment increased more rapidly than the inside group. In the long run there was little appreciable difference between the two groups in the total milk, butter fat and total solids differences being so small as to be in the range of error due to the individuality of the animals used of the feeder, and variation in the position of the several feeds.

The bedding question was settled up with the statement that outside cows required more bedding but less labor was required than in the case of the inside animals housed in the open shed less susceptible to disease, tuberculosis, than those kept in stables.

Precautions should be taken in housing animals in an open shed that the shed should be tight except on the open side.

ABOUT FURS.

Points About the Favorite Pelts This Season.

At present sealskin was almost anything originally. Muskrats and rabbits are mostly used. These substitutes have not undergone as elaborate and disguising a process as the real seal, which is first of all plucked, the coarse hair being entirely removed to show the soft fur underneath. But even that fur must be dyed.

So there is no such thing as natural
sealskin, except the hairy silvery pelt
which forms a handsome motorcoat,
usually of some few years' standing.

Ermine is the favorite fur and in sets and trimmings may be worn en promenade. For evening there are long ermine cloaks.

Chinchilla, also costing huge sums,
is another fur which is likely to be unbecoming to certain women. Several furs imitate it from a distance,
and opossum is in something the same coloring.

Skunk is a very useful and becoming
fur and serves in a thousand ways,
being as much favored for trimmings
as it is for sets. It is the general
choice for collar and cuffs and trims
profusely many a "Hudson bay seal"
coat.

In novelties long black monkey is a
Paris fad for trimming dresses.

This long fur appears in numerous ways, but as a fringe on evening gowns
it is most conspicuous.

Fox sets are fairly classic.

Silver fox is one of the handsomest.
Fisher is a magnificent choice, but it is a rather heavy fur, a good sized set
being somewhat weighty.

Russian fitch, cream and brown,
makes a handsome set. The long stole
and the muff are made up in the mode
and most approved for sable sets.

The beauty and richness of furs are indeed a delight.

KEEPING LIVE STOCK.

Open Sheds Found to Be Most Advantageous.

Experiment conducted for several years at the Pennsylvania experiment station, to study of housing dairy animals unproved as compared with housing in the ordinary closed barn, led the following general conclusions: The food requirements under different conditions of housing; (2) the effect on the health of the cow; (3) the difference in the amount of milk.

Data secured by this experiment shows that cows kept under sheds have keener appetites and are more roughage than those in the barn. The milk yield of the cows in the experiment decreased rapidly than that of the cows in the long run there was an appreciable difference between two groups in total yield of milk and total solids, these being so small as to be without error due to the indifference of the animals used, the skill of the operator, and variation in the composition of the feeds, the question may be summed up in the statement that the cows required more bedding, and were required to move in the case of the inside cows. Cows housed in the open shed are less liable to disease, such as tuberculosis, than those kept in stables. Care should be taken in housing cows in an open shed, to protect them from drafts; in other words, the shed should be tight except on the

Musical Birthright of Children.

In the most remote villages in this country, in purely industrial communities, among the poor and among the rich (both have forgotten), children love good songs. It is their natural inheritance. No excess of materialism in the generations affects it in the least. This is the primitive endowment. Deep down in human character there lies a harmony of adjustment with nature. Overlay it as you may with custom or habit, sully it with luxury, it still persists, for without it human life cannot be. This idealistic basis of human life, which is never destroyed, appears fresh and unstained in children and in song it bubbles up as from a pure spring.—Atlantic Monthly.

Roast Young Pig.

A pig about six weeks old is best for roasting whole. Scald and scrape the skin and clean thoroughly the inside, the head and the feet, removing the hoofs. Score the skin in squares, rub lard over it and season with salt and pepper. Fill with a bread dressing as for turkey, or make a cornmeal dressing as follows: Salt two quarts of cornmeal as for bread and mix to a stiff batter with boiling water; spread in shallow pans and bake. When cool break it up and add to it one-quarter pound of butter, pepper to taste and a tablespoonful of sage or thyme. Fill the pig till plump, sew it up and place it on its knees in the roasting pan. Keep plenty of water in the pan and baste frequently, turning the pig as you would a turkey.

A half hour before the pig is done place whole red apples in the pan and bake.

Practical Laundry Slips.

For a few cents you can have a salesman's manifold order book containing carbon paper. Use this when you make out your laundry slip and you will have one copy for yourself.

Her Fame.

The Duchess of Westminster has the reputation of being the wittiest woman in society. The duchess tells an excellent story about an ex-shah of Persia who was very fond of paying compliments to English ladies.

When the Duchess of Westminster was presented he greeted her heartily. "I have heard much about you," he said. "Your worthy name is well known even in my country."

The duchess was surprised at first, then a light dawned upon her. "Gracious me, I do believe he mistakes me for Westminster abbey!" she said. What was more, she was right.

Farmers themselves can exchange labour. School boys can assist.

NEW CAMISOLES.

Helps For the Girl Who Makes Her Own Lingerie.

It is natural that every girl should crave dainty underwear, but it is usually impossible for the average girl to buy the attractive models shown in the shops. By making her own garments a girl can acquire some of those things which she has long admired.

There is a variety of material from which the home sewer can make selections. Nainsook, fine lawns, silk muslin, crepe de chine and Italian silk are all admirable.

Hemstitching is a successful means for elaborating underwear. It is practical, too, in that it can be done so cheaply by machine, and it wears much better than lace. If one has the time hand embroidery is especially appropriate for underwear, particularly in these days of sheer blouses. An expensive blouse or frock is marred by shabby underwear or underwear which is cheap and showy.

The liberty to wear colored underwear has misled some girls. They abuse the right and make themselves conspicuous by wearing beneath thin blouses camisoles or chemises of brilliant pinks and blues. Now either color in a dainty shade is rather attractive and lends beauty to a blouse or dress.

One little tip in the making of the chemise or camisole may prove helpful to the home sewer. That is to be sure to place the shoulder straps sufficiently over the shoulders to prevent them from slipping, thus causing much annoyance to the wearer. Pin them on first and see if they fit comfortably.

Embroidered shoulder straps are a feature of many new chemises. These are sometimes edged with lace. Ribbon straps are very much in favor too.

A chemise which is so simple that a child could make it is made from a straight piece of material folded in half the length of the goods. The sides are stitched down to within a few inches of the bottom, and the top is finished with beading, lace or whatever one wishes to use. Along the folded line the material is cut to form holes large enough for the feet to pass through. The bottom at the sides can be shaped if desired, and the rough edges can be concealed with lace or beading. A touch of hand embroidery across the front and the addition of shoulder straps are all that are needed to complete the garment.

CHURCH CHOIR

PROFESSOR WHEATLEY AND HIS MUSICIANS DO CREDIT TO A SPLENDID PROGRAMME

It was a crowded church that greeted Prof. Wheatley at his initial appearance as Conductor of Grace Church Choir and it is doubtful if any event of the kind ever more visibly stirred and gripped its audience than did this musical treat. Prof. Wheatley showed himself a master conductor of music, and the choir never showed to better advantage. As a leader Prof. Wheatley is always sincere, conscientious, and hard working, and is growing popular, not only with the choir, but the congregation. His interpretations are marked by a strong, intense, individual personality, backed by a thorough knowledge of music. Prof. Wheatley has a splendid choir, and the choir has in him a splendid leader.

The choice of the assisting artists was a happy one. Ethel Wheatley possesses a clear, sweet, mezzo soprano voice, and sings with ease of production, accurate intonation, and a general style that never departs from refinement. Her songs were one of the most pleasing features of the evening, and met with general approval. Mr. Perry Cook, the baritone soloist, has a voice of fine quality and extensive range over which he has excellent control. His songs were much enjoyed by all.

Miss McConachie was the soprano soloist in the Cantata, and sang throughout with intense feeling. While Miss McConachie is always a favorite with Napanee audiences, she never sang with greater effect, and showed marked development under recent training.

Miss Olive McMillan is always heard with pleasure by Grace Church audiences, and this was no exception. She has a voice of good quality, and especially good tone in the lower range, over which she has splendid control. Her selections were heartily encored.

Miss Mazie Madole surprised the audience in this her first appearance. Her sweet singing, her clear enunciation, and her pleasing manners ought to make her a very popular singer. The instrumental selections were of a very high order.

The instrumental selections were of a very high order. Lovers of the violin were carried away by the sweet playing of Miss Joy Higgs. She is an artist in every sense, and her num-

quality 'was of a beautiful singing character.

The duet by Prof. Wheatley and Miss
H. Wartman was a most brilliant performance, and called for repeated en-cores. Prof. Wheatley might well be proud of his brilliant pupil, Miss Wartman.

The choir sang Maunder's Cantata,
"Penitence, Pardon, Peace," a work
taking forty minutes, and was remarkably well rendered. They obtained a nice quality of tone in the softer
passages, and good attack was noticed throughout. The outstanding feature of the choral work was good
phrasing and good tonal contrast,
points which are very weak in the average chorus.

Mrs. Black, the organist of the church, sustained and upheld the choir in this cantata in a splendid manner.

You Should Hear Him!

Dr. Scott's lecture before the Historical Society this Friday evening
should be of great interest to all who have been following the political moves upon the Imperial chess-board.
Statesmen throughout the Empire are now grappling with the great problems which are sure to arise upon the conclusion of the war. All loyal Canadians are asking themselves what are all these sacrifices for? What is Canada's position in the Empire? We have shared the burdens of the war, to what extent are we to share in the Councils of the Empire? These are some of the great problems which the
Dr. is likely to touch upon. Come and hear him. The meeting is free to all.
